ARTIFICIAL SILK WEDDING GOWNS.

TRIUMPHS OF A NEW BRITISH INDUSTRY.

"CREPE DE CHINE."

London, April 19th.
A radiant bride in a white broadcloth dress and tulle veil followed by two bridesmaids in delicately tinted champagne coloured frocks, stepped down from a mosquito-like erection in the Holland Park Hall early this afternoon, writes a woman correspondent to a Home paper.

The bride's walk down the white joy-plank covered with black velvet was the signal for an outburst of applause. She was London's first all-British artificial silk clad bride, and made her appearance at the first exhibition of British artificial silk goods ever held in London.

FINE LINGERIE.

There is nothing from the finest crepe de chine to the most handsome crepe that the manufacturer in British artificial silk cannot produce. His latest triumph is some exquisitely fine crepe de chine in delicate colourings, and suitable for fine lingerie.

This was only perfected a fortnight ago, and effects a saving, as compared with the price of all silk crepe de chine in a similar quality, of between four and five shillings a yard.

At one time two and three colour productions had to be dyed before the threads were set up in the looms. Now, however, they can be piece-dyed and a new era has been opened in the manufacture of such goods.

LIKE HAND-EMBROIDERED.

Some beautiful broadcloth fabrics for curtains were shown. They looked as if they had been hand-embroidered. Actually they had been woven on the looms that were originally made for the manufacture of Nottingham lace curtains.

Beautiful plain silk curtains—the material would do equally well for frocks, were being shown. The price, retail, is 3s. 11d. a yard.

Another triumph for the British silk manufacturer in the furnishing line is the artificial silk cretonne. Some armchairs were covered in cretonne with a chamois pattern that proved, on examination, to be artificial silk; it looked like linen.

One drawback to artificial silks was their liability to get crushed. A British firm has discovered a way to prevent this so that wearers of artificial silk gowns need not fear for their smart appearance.

To return to the bride. Her appearance was the signal for a dress display that kept women fascinated until long after the luncheon hour.

One vision wore apricot taffeta finely pleated and trimmed with cream lace. She was dressed, it was explained, for breakfast. Later radiant visions in red and sunrise, blue and white, or orange gowns floated by. They were dressed for the river.

"MENTAL COSMETIC."

Mr. A. M. Samuel, Parliamentary Secretary to the Department of Overseas Trade, who opened the exhibition, expressed pleasure at the beauty of the exhibits. He believed we were on the threshold of a new industry, which would bring great prosperity to our English workers. It was a mental cosmetic to look upon some of the exhibits. They saw materials which were almost like jewels worthy to adorn the robes of goddesses.

ZOO MILK SURPRISE.

ONLY CONDEMNED FOR ANIMALS. TUBERCULOSIS WIPED OUT.

One little sentence from the London Zoological Society's annual report will astonish the average mother and housewife. It runs:

"The complete replacement of fresh milk by condensed milk has notably reduced tuberculosis."

A little later the report states that Zoo animals used 14,592 tins of condensed milk in 1925—7,488 sweetened and 7,104 unsweetened.

It was explained at the Zoological Gardens that many animals, especially those with cloven hooves, were liable to epidemics of bovine tuberculosis. The antelopes seemed to die of nothing else. Yet they lived under very good conditions, and were given generous daily draughts of fresh milk.

Then the fresh milk was cut off and the tinned variety substituted. A marked improvement followed and tubercle has been stamped out in the antelope paddocks.

Infected milk does not produce bovine tuberculosis in human beings, but it may lead to tuberculous glands which have to be cut out, leaving badly scarred necks. The state of affairs in Great Britain, comments a writer in a Home paper, is indeed strange. Uncertified ordinary milk is given to our children without question. The Zoo's monkeys are protected from it.

BACHELOR JUDGE ON MARRIED LIFE.

SOLVING MATRIMONIAL PROBLEMS.

FORGIVENESS, COMPROMISE, KINDNESS AND PATIENCE.

Mr. Justice McCardie, who is unmarried, explained in the King's Bench Division how matrimonial problems can be solved.

All you want," he said, "is the spirit of forgiveness, the spirit of kindness, the spirit of compromise, and the spirit of patience. Once these things triumph, the difficulties vanish."

The question arose during the cross-examination by Mr. Birkett, R.C., of Mr. W. R. Thresh, who is claiming damages from the N.S.P.C.C. for alleged malicious prosecution.

Mr. Thresh complained that he was deported to Ireland, where he was sentenced to six months' hard labour for neglecting his children—a conviction that was quashed on appeal.

JUDGE ON HUSBANDS WHO ARE DISAPPOINTED.

Mr. Birkett had suggested that if Mr. Thresh had introduced a better spirit into his married life much trouble would have been avoided.

"Matrimonial problems are not so easy to solve as you suggest in your cross-examination," remarked the judge.

"I am not suggesting that they are easy," said Mr. Birkett.

Mr. Justice McCardie then made the remarks quoted above, upon which Mr. Birkett said: "Your Lordship speaks with great plausibility in these matters."

DISAPPOINTED HUSBANDS.

Later, Mr. Birkett, referring to answers given by Mr. Thresh, said: "If you impute bad motives to everybody, there would never be any happiness in the world today."

"There does not seem to be any in this case," said the judge. "The moment a man and wife do not trust each other, happiness leaves the home."

Mr. Thresh said that he had done his utmost for his wife. When the inspector of the society at Cork told him that she was willing to go back she said she was not, but afterwards she said she would do so for the children's sake.

"That did not seem to be a very bright prospect for me," added witness.

Mr. Justice McCardie: Most husbands expect more than that.

Mr. Birkett: They get disappointed, some of them.

Mr. Justice McCardie: They do.

THE OPTIMIST AND THE PESSIMIST.

"It is difficult to speak without being personal," was another observation by Mr. Birkett.

"You must not say that," said the judge. "When learned counsel appears as a pessimist at three o'clock you will find to-night he will be an optimist when he gets home."

The hearing was adjourned.

ORDERS FOR BRITAIN.

OIL-SHIPS, DREDGERS, AND LOCOMOTIVES.

Messrs. Palmers Shipbuilding and Iron Co., Ltd., of Jarrow, Co. Durham, have booked a contract for a 8,100-ton vessel from British Tankers, Ltd., and Messrs. Swan, Hunter, and Wigham-Richardson, Ltd., are to build at their Walker-on-Tyne shipyard two 10,000-ton oil-carriers for the same firm.

The Cork Harbour Commissioners have ordered two large dredgers from Messrs. Priestman Brothers, Ltd., of Hull.

Modern Transport states that the Crown Agents for the Colonies have awarded a contract for eight superheated locomotives for the Nigerian railways to Sir W. G. Armstrong & Co., Ltd., of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The Port of London Authority has placed the contract for the floating portion of the passenger landing stage which is being erected at Tilbury with the Cleveland Bridge and Engineering Co., Ltd., of Darlington.

LOST THROUGH STRIKE FEARS.

Modern Transport, in announcing that the administration of the Union of South Africa Railways and Harbours has awarded contracts for 20 heavy main-line locomotives to German builders, the work being divided between the firms of Maffei, of Munich, and Henschel, of Cassel, understands that the determining factor in the award of the contracts was the fear by the South African authorities that British builders, faced with the probability of early trouble in the coal and engineering trades, would be obliged to exceed the delivery dates offered in their tenders.

THE LUCKIEST MAN IN LONDON.

£13 INCOME TAX "GIFT."

AN OFFICIAL MYSTERY.

A man who lives in South London is prepared to declare that the income tax authorities are philanthropists. They have just given him £13.

He does not know why, nor does Somerset House. But he has gratefully accepted the money and the tax officials are now trying to look like the anonymous donor who blushes to find news of his benefactions published.

"Last night," said the lucky man to an Evening Standard representative, "I received one of those unpleasant buff envelopes, but instead of a demand for more money I found it contained a kindly-phrased note telling me that 'as a concession' I would be allowed £13."

"What?" exclaimed a Somerset House official, when he was told of the department's generosity. Then, after thinking it over, he said:—

"We, you know, we do have cases in which people have been honestly foolish."

"A CURIOUS CASE."

It was pointed out that the beneficiary had made no claim and asked for no concession.

"Ah," said the official, "but perhaps he had something in his mind, and the local inspector knew he had something in his mind, or he may have made a claim some time ago. Still, it is a curious case, and I would rather like to know how it arose." But he could think of no positive explanation.

"If there had been overpayment on the first instalment," he continued thoughtfully, "it would have been offset against the second instalment due in July. Yes, it looks as if it was in regard to something which had happened before."

Then Somerset House began to take credit for its own generosity.

"The Board," said the official, "are very anxious that where it is found that a taxpayer has paid too much he should be informed. When a man has got a salary and dividends as well, and all his allowances cannot be set against his salary, we inform him that a certain amount is due back to him on dividends, and we ask him to send in his vouchers."

ADDITIONAL CHECK.

Further reflection brought this other possible explanation.

"There is an additional check made of the facts of many cases after the original demand notes have been sent out. This case may have been one of them."

The official, however, did not say whether the extra check was for the purpose of applying another turn to the screw, which Mr. Churchill desires should be tightened, or whether it was undertaken to protect the taxpayer from possible "miscalculations by income tax experts."

If, however, the extra check had revealed an undercharge, the taxpayer would have had a further demand sent to him forthwith.

"Of course," said the official, "he would have an opportunity of appealing against this extra demand."

And in this case," asked the Evening Standard representative, "is there a right of appeal for the recipient of the £13?"

"Oh, yes," said Somerset House, "he can appeal, if he cares, against the allowance of £13, or he can appeal on the grounds that the concession is not sufficient."

ROAMING RIGHT EYE.

HOW UGLINESS IS CAUSED.

A lecture concerning the fitting of spectacles and the problems of opticians in dealing with lop-sided faces, distorted eyebrows, and bent noses was given by Mr. Harry L. Taylor, chairman of the National Council for the Preservation of Eyesight, at the Optical Convention held at the Imperial College of Science, South Kensington, W.

Ugliness, it seems, is the result of the activities of the right, directing, or pre-dominant eye.

With the growth of intelligence this eye works faster, and consequently gets farther and farther out of line, broadening the right side of the face at the expense of its length, tagging the nose out of line, and playing tricks with the right eyebrow.

The moral of this lecture seemed to be that one cannot expect to be both beautiful and intellectual.

The faces of only 40 per cent. of women lack symmetry, and the way for a woman to keep her girlhood beauty is not by the use of soaps and powders but by suppressing the right eye's natural propensity to roam.

England has a preponderance of ugly faces because English people are demonstrative with their eyes. The Frenchman and the Italian, however, who have a softness round the eyes, and demonstrative with their arms and mouths. They do not give their right eyes the work we give ours.

BRITISH MINERS' MISSION TO GERMANY.

REPORT ON ENQUIRY.

BIGGER COMPANIES AND MORE UP-TO-DATE METHODS.

Besides sending to the United States a delegation of working engineers, the Daily Mail invited eight British miners to visit the coal mining centres in Germany and Poland to enquire into the conditions and methods governing the industry in those countries.

During their tour they had every facility for inspecting many of the greatest German mines, and among the things they particularly noticed were the huge dumps of coal in the Ruhr and Silesia, of coal which is at present unsaleable through trade depression.

Other features that impressed them included:

The elaborate use which the German mineowner makes of by-products, with the result that he extracts every possible profit from his pit and adds enormously to the prosperity of the industry.

Grouping of mining undertakings into large combinations.

The better equipment of pits with labour-saving machinery. Throughout the tour a German miner was not seen working with a hand-pick.

Electric underground haulage which is so largely employed in German mines in place of the ponies of the British pits.

The bad conditions under which the Polish miner lives—conditions that would not be tolerated in the British coalfields.

WHAT THE MISSION FOUND.

The following are the chief points of the delegates' report:

The coal seams in Upper Silesia are thicker than in Britain.

The maximum use of mechanical power and the minimum use of labour power seems to be the principle upon which the German owners act.

The lay-out of the colliers is better than in England.

Instead of having half a dozen collieries as in England, each with its separate equipment, one huge undertaking is formed to exploit a very wide area. The combination of capital effects economy in administration.

HOUSING AND WAGES.

There is little difference between the time worked by miners in Germany and that worked at home.

With reference to wages, there is little to choose between the German and the British. In terms of money, the British miner appears to be at an advantage, but the German receives various emoluments, such as family allowances, free tools, and so forth.

Trade depression in Germany is felt as keen as at home. In the Ruhr 260,000 miners are unemployed.

Foreign competition and the depression in the iron and steel trades are given as the primary causes.

WORLD COMPETITION.

In view of the effects of competition between nations, it would be much better if the whole mining industry could be treated as one unit with a method of co-ordinating sales so that prices could be so arranged as to prevent prosperity in one coalfield from being obtained at the cost of privation in another.

The German miner is no better than the English and the English no better than the German. We deprecate any talk of one being so much superior or inferior to the other.

Technical advancement will not of itself solve the problems of the mining industry.

Until some system is adopted whereby the interest of the workmen can be made to coincide with the advancement of technique there remains little hope of peace and contentment in the industry.

MR. A. M. THOMPSON'S VIEWS.

In a letter to the Editor of the Daily Mail, Mr. A. M. Thompson writes:

Sir,—As a representative of the Daily Mail on the Miners' Mission to Germany I was not allowed to influence the judgment of the delegates by expression of my personal views. But now that the Mission is finished I am entitled, as a private citizen, once more to say what I think.

With all that the delegates have said as to the higher efficiency and economy of the German mining equipment as compared with ours I am in thorough agreement. I am convinced, as they were, that our mining industry is handicapped by multiplicity of ownership and that some form of combination is essential to its future prosperity. But to recognise so vast a trade and to bring our mining equipment up to the best German standard will obviously take time.

It cannot be done in a week, nor a month, nor a year. What is more to the point is that the change cannot possibly be effected by the end of this month, when the Government's subsidies terminate. What is to be done now?

WHEN THE SUBSIDY ENDS.

We were repeatedly told during our tour that the British State help had enabled British coal exporters to put up serious competition against the Germans at Stettin, and even Berlin. But when the subsidy ends this will no longer be possible. The Germans will be able to monopolise their own market. The coal which Poland is producing in excess of her own requirements, and which Germany refuses to admit, is actually being sold under cost of production and must be cleared at any price.

If Britain were to blunder into the terrible calamity of a stoppage of production, neither Poles nor Germans would be able to fill the gap.

THE LESSON OF THE AXHAM CASE.

Rear-Admiral A. H. Smith-Dorrien in a letter to a London paper says:—

The case of Dr. Axham affects the individual, but medical efficiency concerns the community.

Laymen can understand the reason why Dr. Axham's name was scratched off the register. What they cannot understand is why Sir Herbert Barker's methods have not been inquired into, for he tells me he could teach them to a few who have special characteristics, and he naturally wishes his knowledge to be perpetuated.

Some years ago, in the interests of the public, 14 patients suffering from eye afflictions petitioned the Medical Council to inquire into the modern methods by which their sight had been restored.

The registrar of the Medical Council informed me in writing that he knew of no place in England where such discoveries could be investigated.

All I can say is that there should be. How can the Medical Council maintain an adequate standard of proficiency at any qualifying examinations if they themselves have no knowledge of the latest discoveries made by those who in the first instance may be called quacks (Watts with his steam engine was a quack) or by members of their own profession who often find themselves so labelled.

If there had been some sort of court of appeal probably Dr. Axham's name would have been reinstated years ago. Such a reform now would be a fitting memorial to one who sacrificed his own personal and professional interests for the cause of suffering humanity. If it comes he will not have lived in vain.

SIR HERBERT BARKER AND DR. AXHAM.

How Dr. Axham's association with Sir Herbert Barker came about is related by the latter in the following letter:—

I made the acquaintance of my esteemed colleague and friend in the following circumstances:—

At the end of 1905 or early in 1906 I issued an invitation to several medical men—all strangers—to witness my methods.

Only a very few responded, and among them was Dr. Axham. When the demonstration was over, after having watched me with the greatest interest and after putting to me numerous and very pertinent questions, he asked if he might see more of my work.

I readily assented, and for 45 consecutive days—for 2 or 3 hours each afternoon—he devoted himself to the closest investigation of my system, following each case from its earliest treatment to its symptomatic cure with the closest and most painstaking care.

At the termination of that period he pointed out that my work was being unnecessarily handicapped and was causing avoidable pain through the lack of an anæsthetic, and kindly suggested that he would render assistance in this respect if I would allow him.

Naturally I accepted his humane offer with much relief, and a co-operation was initiated which was the means of the development of my manipulative procedures, and which rendered possible the undertaking of the more difficult types of case without restriction and with the minimum of pain.

I cannot say how much I owe—personally and in regard to the work to which I have devoted my life—to the courageous stand thus taken by Dr. Axham. He encouraged me and stood by me when I needed all the support he freely gave, and his sacrifice for convenience sake has helped to place manipulative surgery in the position it occupies to-day among our most powerful and meritorious therapeutic arms in the warfare against human disability and disease.

experience any difficulty in finding markets. And markets once lost would be hard to regain. Many pits in Britain, having once been closed, might never be reopened.

As for the suffering which would have to be endured by our miners' wives and children during the period of stoppage, and the addition to the mass of unemployment which would remain as a permanent result, no decent citizen can contemplate these inevitable consequences without a sinking of the heart.

There must be no stoppage. Unless the nation is mad, there will be no stoppage. There must be a way to avert so unthinkable a disaster.

QUESTION OF EQUIPMENT.

The members of the Daily Mail Mission, seeing that their leaders were engaged in delicate and difficult negotiation with the owners and the Government, discreetly and loyally refrained from butting in with expressions of individual opinions on the immediate crisis, and contented themselves with deductions from their German experiences as to possible and desirable future reforms. "If these improvements in equipment were made," they say in effect, "there would be no need to alter our working conditions."

Of course, they know that these improvements cannot be made "while wait," but they probably think that, if they consented to accept any reduction of pay or increase of working time now, the industry's reorganisation might never be attempted.

Is it beyond the wit of statesmen to remove this misgiving by any form of guarantee that a serious reform of the evident defects in our mining industry shall be not only "recommended" but enforced? If the miners were sure that financial and mechanical hindrances to economy of output were to be honestly and strenuously tackled, I feel sure that their chief objection to Mr. Hodge's suggestion of an extra half-hour's work for a transitional period would be removed.

MARKET CONDITIONS IN JAPAN.
MONTHLY CABLED REVIEW.

The Japanese Consul-General in Hongkong has received the following cable reviewing the commercial conditions in Japan during the past month:

The foreign trade of Japan in April showed a decline of Yen 26,000,000 in the export of silk, cotton piece-goods, etc., and of Yen 30,000,000 in the import of raw cotton, flour, etc. The market is dull owing to the sudden jump of the exchange and there is no special factors of a favourable nature. However, the demand abroad is expected to increase gradually owing to the fall in price.

The exchange on New York jumped up to 47 on April 23rd but afterwards proved top heavy and it was cut down to 46 on May 4th and again on May 5th and 6th. Owing to the increase in exchange rate, the price of commodities such as silk, rice, cotton yarn, etc., has dropped to the levels in March 1918.

The stock market, sympathizing with the decline in price of commodities, also slumped and the money market showed a dull tone. The strike in England had no marked effect upon trade.

MR. EDESEL FORD'S VISIT TO ENGLAND.

"I WANT TO GO ABOUT WITHOUT FUSS."

BAN ON CALLERS.

Mr. Edsel Ford, son of Mr. Henry Ford, of motor-car fame, arrived in London on April 21st.

One of the first things that one notices about Mr. Ford (writes an Evening Standard representative who visited him at his West End hotel) is his frank, unaffected smile.

The only well-known smile with which one can compare it is that of the Prince of Wales, who was entertained by Mr. Ford during his recent visit to America.

CALLERS TURNED AWAY.

They say that Mr. Edsel Ford's fortune amounts now to two hundred million pounds and that he is the second richest man in the world. His father is the first.

Like many rich men, he is extraordinarily shy, and at the big hotel in which he is staying he and Mrs. Ford were inaccessible to almost everybody, although there were countless callers.

They remained in their suite until their car arrived—driven by a chauffeur who had the name of the makers on his coat collar—and then quickly drove off.

Mr. Ford had arrived just as the sun had broken through the clouds of the morning, and he was looking forward to an interesting day.

BUSINESS AND PLEASURE.

"I have been in England before," he remarked, "for I was over here when I was 26. On this occasion I am here mostly for pleasure, but in the midst of it I hope to see all of our plants in Europe. I am going to Manchester and to Cork, and I also want to inspect the site at Dagenham."

"Yes," he admitted, "wealth has its embarrassments on a trip of this kind, and I want so far as I can to go about without any fuss. I have had a good time on the way over, and I hope to combine a little business with pleasure while we are here."

"Does that mean you have any big developments in view?"

THE HORSE-POWER TAX.

"No," was the reply. "There cannot be any here until we have got at the solution of the horse-power tax. A tax of 22s. you know, is a very big drawback to progress."

Mr. and Mrs. Ford are not accompanied by any other members of the family. They have three children, two boys of six and four years respectively and a little girl seven months old.

HOW THE BETTING TAX WORKS.

SUCCESS IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

[BY AN AUSTRALIAN.]

Lord Lansdale has expressed the opinion that if a tax on betting is passed, the Act will break down in the first year.

This is exactly what the opponents of a tax on betting said in New South Wales in 1918, when the Holman Government discovered this novel form of raising revenue. They also said: as the opponents of the tax are saying here, that a paralysing blow would be struck at the thoroughbred industry, and that the sport of racing would suffer a fatal setback.

Let us examine these arguments in the light of what has happened in New South Wales since the tax came into force ten years ago.

The outstanding fact is that, although more than £4,000,000 had accrued to successive New South Wales Governments from the taxation of betting up to the end of 1924, never has prize money been bigger, competition keener, racing on a higher level, or attendances greater in the State than they are to-day.

- (a) On racing clubs.
- (b) On bookmakers.
- (c) On betting tickets.

The tax on betting tickets, which every bookmaker is compelled by law to issue to cash betters, was, under the original Act, a penny in the Saddle Paddock, and a half-penny in the Leger and Flat. In 1917 these rates were doubled, and in 1920 the tax on betting tickets in the paddock was increased to 3d.

In 1918 the revenue from the stamp duty on betting tickets for cash transactions was £27,638. How it has grown is clear from the following table:

In 1917	£40,849
1918	57,391
1919	54,840
1920	87,504
1921	96,383
1922	106,068
1923	106,550
1924	108,688

This gives a total of £530,173, which hardly indicates a breakdown in the scheme.

The tax on bookmakers works in this way. Each bookmaker must make out a monthly return to the New South Wales Government showing the total bets received, and this must be accompanied by a cheque for the amount of the tax. Since 1918 the revenue from this taxation of credit betting, up to the end of 1924, amounts to more than £250,000.

The surprising thing is that all the bookmakers in New South Wales are in favour of the tax. One of them who was recently in this country (Mr. W. C. Aldritt, of Tattersall's Club, Sydney) told me that he was at a loss to understand why the taxation of credit betting should not be feasible in this country.

"If," he said, "the British Government, after introducing the tax, found difficulty in dealing with recalcitrant or dishonest bookmakers, would it not be easy to stop their letters and telegrams, and, if necessary, cut off their telephones? We are all in favour of the tax, as it makes our business a clean and honest one. The control exercised by the State on racing in New South Wales has eliminated the 'welsker' and strengthened the position of the reputable bookmaker. Bookmakers realised that control and tax are in their own interests. We are compelled to produce our bank-book and prove we are in a strong financial position. Bookmakers' clerks must also be licensed and must show a clear record before they can obtain their permits."

"All of which goes to prove that there is no ground for Lord Lansdale's pessimism."

WHAT MINERS STUDY.

PSYCHOLOGY AND EVEN MINE GEOLOGY.

That the miner of to-day, while fond of sport, is also eager for knowledge, even of abstract subjects, is fully indicated by the following figures, given by the British Institute of Adult Education.

There have so far been 100,000 attendances at lectures under the one-year course scheme organized by the Miners' Lectures Joint Committee for the Yorkshire Miners.

There are 320 courses, which include:

- History.
- Economics.
- Music.
- Drama.
- Literature.
- Psychology.
- Hygiene.
- Coalfield Geology.

It is hoped this year to inaugurate a scholarship scheme to enable working miners, their sons or daughters, to enjoy the full benefit of university life with complete freedom to choose their study.

Between 600 and 700 miners attend the three-year tutorial classes organized by the Workers' Educational Association, which are run jointly with the Extra-Mural Boards of Universities. The standard aimed at is that of the work for an honours degree at a university.

A CRICKETER'S YARNS.

WHEN MR. WARNER PLAYED IN BROWN SHOES.

BATSMAN KILLED AT LORDS.

Mr. P. F. Warner, in a foreword to a volume entitled "A Cricketer's Yarns," by Richard Duff, calls Duff, who was born in 1835 and died in 1900, "the Palmet of his time," and says:

"The first thing that strikes one is the change in dress that has come about. The tall hat had disappeared before Duff's time, but round pot hats were general at that period. Duff soon discarded this type of headgear for a cap, but 'Billycock' hats were worn by many players long after he had discarded them."

"Coloured shirts, too, were very common in his time, and black-and-white striped shirts were nearly always worn by the two great Nottingham bowlers J. C. Shaw and Fred Morley, the latter so indifferent a batsman that tradition asserts that he was seen emerging from the pavilion to bat the horse at Trent Bridge used instinctively to walk between the shafts of the roller."

"Nearly all cricketers, too, wore brown boots instead of the white ones so universal to-day; and I myself remember playing in the Rugby and Marlborough match of 1869 in brown shoes." It was during the next season that everybody, even schoolboys, took to white boots.

LORD'S BAD WICKET.

"The wickets in Duff's day were, of course, nothing like so good as they are now. Lord's, indeed, was a 'terror,' and it was at Lord's in 1870 that Duff himself came in with a towel wrapped round his head after Summers, the Nottingham player, had received so terrible a blow on the temple from a fast-rising ball from Platts that he died a few days later."

Duff tells us of the days, when the bowlers were allowed to select the wickets to suit their own bowling. "The early laws enacted that 'The party which goes from home shall have the choice of the innings and the pitching of the wickets, which shall be pitched within thirty yards of a centre fixed by the adversaries.'"

By 1816, however, the rule had become: "The umpires in all matches to pitch fair wickets, and the parties to toss for the choice of innings."

Here is one of several good umpire stories:

"A country umpire, when his own side were batting, gave a man in who was palpably caught at the wicket. The wicket-keeper told the umpire he knew nothing whatever about cricket. "The umpire said little in reply, but presently, when the other side were in and his friend the wicket-keeper was batting, the latter was appealed to as being run-out, although it was plain that he was well in. "Out," shouted the umpire, and added, looking savagely at the batsman, 'I'll teach you whether I know out about cricket or not.'"

K Crepe rubber sole SHOES.

K Makers have spent two years in perfecting the crepe rubber sole shoe. Last year they overcame the difficulty of making rubber soles weld immovably by means of a new and successful method. This year they have applied the non-skid principle of the motor tyre to K crepe shoes. The circular holes in the outer layer of rubber give a firm suction grip and also help to prevent the tough crepe rubber from spreading.

LOOPHOLES IN THE LAW FOR WIVES.

NO BANKRUPTCIES OR INCOME TAX
HUSBANDS TO BLAME.

The husband of a rich woman recently died, before their joint income tax had been paid, leaving an insufficiency of money to pay the tax. The income tax commissioners asked the widow, from whose income the major portion of the tax had always been paid, to pay the tax, but she refused, stating that she would take advantage of the law which had created both the income and the husband only being liable to pay.

This was one instance of anomalies of the law concerning married women which were cited by Mrs. Maud I. Crofts, one of the first women solicitors, who addressed a group of students at the College of Nursing, on "The Wife under English Law."

"No married woman is liable to pay income tax or super tax," said Mrs. Crofts. "In spite of the Married Women's Property Acts, which conferred on married women the right to own property, the husband is still solely liable to pay tax on both his own and his wife's income, which for this purpose are treated as one income."

DODGING IT.

"No married woman can be adjudged a bankrupt. The fact that this can be extremely useful under certain circumstances was illustrated by a spinster who failed in business, but avoided the consequences by marrying while the bankruptcy proceedings were pending.

Again, there is the enactment which provides that when man and wife are jointly indicted for an offence the woman can ask the court to presume coercion. Not long ago a couple were charged with an extensive series of betting frauds. There was not the slightest doubt that the wife was the brains of the business, her husband being merely a passive tool in her hands, but she pleaded coercion and escaped.

"Fortunately, that particular law is soon to be amended, and any woman who raises the coercion plea after June next will have to support it with evidence."

THEFT.

"It is still ordained that under normal conditions a husband and wife are incapable of stealing from each other. The appropriation of the property of a wife only becomes a theft if the person responsible is about to desert from the home."

If one of the parties concerned in a marriage is so drunk at the time of the wedding as to be incapable of recognizing the other, he or she has the right to demand afterwards that the ceremony shall be declared invalid.

Speaking of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of the Law Courts, Mrs. Crofts said the triple title had always been something of a mystery to lawyers. There was, of course, some connection between probate and divorce, but it was hard to see where the Admiralty came in. An ingenious student had suggested that perhaps it was included because "Venus rose from the sea."

SEVEN-VOLUME NOVEL.

MR. COMPTON MACKENZIE'S
THREE YEARS' TASK.

Mr. Compton Mackenzie, the author, has entered into a contract with an American publishing house to write a novel of 1,000,000 words. It will be issued in seven volumes simultaneously three years hence. Afterwards he is to undertake a history of the Crusades in eight volumes, and he is also contemplating a novel in about 10 volumes, the theme beginning in the year 1000, and ending in 1914. It will form a kind of ancestral epic. Mr. Mackenzie is now 43, and he says: "The last work may amuse my old age."

"OUR SEVEN SELVES."

The title of the million-word novel appears in the contract as "Our Seven Selves," and it is to be ready for publication in the autumn of 1929 or the spring of 1930. Mr. Mackenzie is to start the actual writing of the book early next year, and it will be written entirely at the Isle of Jethou, in the Channel Islands, which he bought some years ago. The titles selected for the seven volumes are: 1. Alien Corn; 2. The Apple of Discord; 3. The Dark and the Fair; 4. The Heroic Symphony; 5. The Molehill; 6. The Mountain; 7. The Olives of Home.

Mr. Mackenzie told a reporter: "The setting of the book begins in the year 1877 and finishes in the 1920's, and its theme is the self-determination of man in relation to his art, profession, or craft; women; family; class, country, humanity; and God. The length of the work is due to the large stage, which extends from Ireland to Greece, the length of time covered by the narrative, and to the number of personages and groups involved. My inspiration for the novel was my experience during the war."

A CONTRAST IN ISLANDS.

Sir James Barrie talked of an "island that likes to be visited." Ceylon is an island to which many would like to pay a prolonged visit, since it does not know what to do with its abounding revenue, writes a correspondent to a home paper. A boom in rubber and tea has caused an excess over the estimate of more than seven million rupees, there is no income tax, and the spending departments are simply unable to spend enough, so heavy are the votes of money placed at their disposal.

But there is another island, Eddy Island, nine miles from Galway, which has owed £2,000 in rates for years, because, it is declared, no one can afford to pay them.

Ceylon might send a cheque to Eddy—just as one island to another.

CHINESE CHAUFFEUR ASSAULTED.

DEFENDANTS TO APPEAL AGAINST CONVICTION.

When Mr. Zimmer and Mr. Leonard were charged before Major C. Willson at the Central Magistracy yesterday with having assaulted a Chinese motor-driver the previous night, Mr. A. E. Hall, who defended them pleaded that they had been unnecessarily provoked by the complainant who had called them "half-castes."

Both defendants pleaded not guilty. Complainant said that he was standing by his car at 10.15 p.m. near the Queen's Theatre waiting for his master. The two defendants came along, and after fingering the car for some time opened the door and seated themselves. He pointed out to them that the car was a private one, and he was awaiting his master. An argument ensued and the defendants lost their temper and used abusive language. One of them eventually struck him.

Replying to Mr. Hall he denied that he was in the habit of hiring his master's car. He admitted having called the defendants, "half-castes."

After evidence had been given by the defendants, Mr. Hall submitted that his clients had been greatly provoked.

The magistrate said that it was a clear case of assault, and fined each defendant $25 and further ordered them to pay $5 each as compensation to the complainant. Mr. Hall gave notice of appeal.

UP A TREE.

INDIAN GUNNER WHO RESISTED ARREST.

Had Gunner Mohammed Khan, of the Royal Artillery, gone about his work noiselessly he would probably be a free man to-day. He climbed a tree opposite St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, when darkness had set in on Tuesday evening for the purpose of taking away some of the green branches. The snapping of the branches was heard, and Mohammed was seen. In response to a command he descended to face a European Police Sergeant. The Sergeant was on his way to the Water Police Station with another Indian, whom he had arrested. Mohammed was ordered to go the same way, but instead, tackled the Sergeant with a view of escaping. Blows were being exchanged when a European came to the assistance of the Sergeant, and Mohammed ceased to struggle.

This was the evidence given by Sgt. Jessop at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, when the Gunner was charged with damaging a tree, and with assault. Mr. F. M. Beltram, who assisted the Sergeant, corroborated.

Defendant alleged that the Sergeant had taken from him a $5 note and a packet of cigarettes. Sgt. Jessop denied it.

Mr. J. H. B. Nihill, the Magistrate, intimated that the allegation could not be taken seriously.

Defendant was fined $20 on the first charge, and sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment without the option of a fine on the second.

BIG OPIUM HAUL.

SEIZURE ON JARDINE STEAMER.

A large quantity of opium, said to be valued at $90,000, was seized by Revenue Officers from the Imports and Exports Department on the Indo-China Co.'s s.s. Sui Sang on Monday.

The drug was contained in 19 bags and weighed about 7,000 taels. It was concealed inside the donkey boiler on top of one of the tubes.

The steamer had arrived from Amoy, and was bound for Singapore.

EUROPEAN INSPECTOR INJURED.

TAXI CRASHES INTO ELECTRIC STANDARD.

Whilst proceeding along Des Voeux Road on Tuesday, a taxi-cab driver in avoiding a motor-car coming from Wardley Street, drove his vehicle against an electric standard.

Sub-Inspector J. McLennan was a passenger in the taxi at the time, and though not injured seriously, he was removed to the Government Civil Hospital. The driver received injuries to his forehead.

The front part of the taxi was smashed.

NAVAL WEDDING. ADSHEAD-ORME.

A pretty wedding took place at St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon, when the contracting parties were Surg.-Comdr. Geoffrey Palmer Adshead, of the Royal Naval Hospital, son of the late Mr. John Adshead, and Mrs. Adshead, of Macclesfield, Cheshire, and Miss Olive May Orme, of the Hongkong Education Department, daughter of Mr. Charles Orme, Penrith, Cumberland.

The Rev. Copley Moyle officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. J. A. Plummer, of Messrs. Bradley & Co., was charmingly attired in a draped gown of white satin with long sleeves embroidered with beads. A long veil fastened with a coronet of orange blossoms formed her train and she carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies.

Miss Alice Brennan, one of the bride's colleagues in the Education Department, was bridesmaid. She was attired in a gown of old-rose tulle, bound with silver and trimmed with silver and tulle roses and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Capt. R. Sturges, Royal Marines, acted as "best man."

Mrs. Plummer, the matron of honour, wore a gown of coffee coloured georgette. As the bride and bridegroom left the Cathedral, they passed under an archway of crossed swords, made by the bridegroom's colleagues.

There was a large attendance at the Church and also at the reception which was subsequently held at the residence of Mrs. Plummer, No. 515, The Peak. Among the guests were Vice-Admiral Sir Edwin Alexander-Sinclair, Mr. A. E. Wood (Director of Education), Commodore and Mrs. Stirling, Surgeon-Captain and Mrs. Chatter, Capt. Forster, Dowling and Steele (A.D.C.'s to the Governor), Professor and Mrs. Shell, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Morton Dyer, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Goldsmith, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Beavis.

The honeymoon is being spent in England, the couple travelling via Japan and Canada. The bride's going-away costume was of silver-grey georgette, trimmed with blue georgette, with hat to match.

ILLNESS OF SIR PAUL CHATER. CONDITION CAUSES GRAVE ANXIETY.

Sir Paul Chater who has been indisposed for some time past, had a serious relapse recently and yesterday his condition gave cause for the gravest anxiety.

At one time hope was almost abandoned. Upon enquiry at Marble Hall last evening, we were informed that there had been no material change for some hours.

Sir Paul is in his 80th year and has spent sixty-two years in the Colony. He was born in 1846 and arrived in Hongkong in 1884 as an assistant in the Bank of Hindustan, China and Japan.

DEATH OF THE HON. MR. P. H. HOLYOAK.

A GREAT LOSS TO THE COLONY.

We deeply regret to record the death of the Hon. Mr. Percy Hobson Holyoak which occurred in England on the 25th inst.

Mr. and Mrs. Holyoak and their two daughters left Hongkong about six weeks ago to spend the summer at Home. Both Mr. and Mrs. Holyoak had been ill prior to their departure. Mrs. Holyoak had undergone in hospital a severe surgical operation. Mr. Holyoak had also spent a short time in hospital not long before his departure, but left it in a sufficiently good state of health to enable him not only to attend to his business affairs but also to resume many of his multifarious public duties. It was plainly evident when he left, however, that he stood in great need of rest and an invigorating climate. On the voyage home Mrs. Holyoak, we learn, derived much benefit, but Mr. Holyoak became so ill that he was unable to land at Colombo. They arrived Home on May 12th, so that they had been in England less than a fortnight when Mr. Holyoak passed away. The news of his death has cast a gloom over the whole Colony and the deepest sympathy with Mrs. Holyoak and her daughters finds universal expression.

The late Mr. Holyoak, who was the son of the Rev. T. H. Holyoak of Chesham Bois, Buckinghamshire, had resided in Hongkong for twenty-seven years. He came out in 1899 to join, we believe, the firm of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., but subsequently he became connected with the old-established Manchester firm of Reiss Bros. In course of time he became a partner in the firm and had charge of the Hongkong branch. As most of our readers are aware, the firm, after a career of prosperity extending over a century was overwhelmed by disaster in the great piece-goods slump in China in 1921-22. This sudden extinction of a great and wealthy firm, enjoying the highest reputation for commercial integrity, evoked nothing but the profoundest sympathy for the individual partners of whom, as we have said, the late Mr. Holyoak was one.

In these circumstances Mr. Holyoak, together with Mr. P. W. Massey, who had had charge of the business of Reiss Bros. in Shanghai, formed the firm of Messrs. Holyoak, Massey & Co., Ltd., of Hongkong, Shanghai, Canton and Chefoo, to carry on the business in China hitherto done by Reiss Bros. It is scarcely necessary to say that the chaotic conditions which have continued to prevail in China during the past four or five years, to the great impediment of trade have been a cause of constant anxiety to most foreign merchants, and it must have been especially disheartening to a newly-established firm. The courage and helpfulness with which the late Mr. Holyoak faced the difficulties of the situation have been the subject of much sympathetic comment, though it is not unreasonable to suppose that these prolonged anxieties must have done much to undermine an already weakened constitution.

Apart from his own business concerns, the late Mr. Holyoak was a man of many interests and boundless activities. He was on the directorate of most of the leading public companies. He was a member of the Court of Directors of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, and a few years ago was its Chairman. He had been for three annual periods Chairman of the Union Insurance Society of Canton, Ltd., and its allied companies, and thrice also, in his long connection with the Hongkong, Canton and Macao Steamboat Co., Ltd., he had been Chairman of the Company. He was also a member of the Board of the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., and of the newly formed Hongkong Telephone Company.

PUBLIC SERVICES.

On five occasions he served with marked ability as Chairman of the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce—a position which is far from ornamental. The manifold activities of the Chamber make heavy calls upon the Chairman's time, and it was generally recognised that the late Mr. Holyoak combined with his long business experience in the Colony and rare grasp of local problems, the gift of seeing into the heart of a question and the ability to conduct the proceedings of Committees and Boards with efficiency and dispatch. It was remarked of him in a report by the Joint Committee of the General and the Chinese Chamber of Commerce who arranged the Hongkong section of the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley that "his skilful conduct in the Chair lightened the labours of all."

For over ten years the late Mr. Holyoak worthily represented the Chamber of Commerce on the Legislative Council of the Colony and served at various periods on the Executive Council, which, in a Colony where every form of local Government is under one authority, calls upon its members for vital and far-reaching decisions on many important questions.

Mr. Holyoak had been associated in public work with the Chinese on most cordial terms for many years and possessed many valued friendships amongst the Chinese community. As many readers will know, despite all that the militarists and the politician in China has done in the past five years to disappoint the hopes and undermine the confidence of the foreign merchant, Mr. Holyoak retained to the last the highest admiration of the Chinese as traders. Speaking not many months ago at a dinner arranged by the Commercial Association of the Hongkong University, he paid this handsome tribute to the Chinese:—"I have transacted very large business in silk and other commodities with my Chinese friends. No written contract between us has ever existed, but I cannot recall one single instance of serious default, and constantly contracts that were merely oral and could not be defended in a Court of Law have been fulfilled to the letter even with market conditions seriously against them. My experience of trade with the Chinese has been a very happy one, and I cannot believe that the close friendships which have been formed will long be interfered with by the present misunderstandings with Canton, which are inspired and not natural, anyhow."

KEEN SUPPORTER OF ALL WORTHY CAUSES.

All worthy public causes could always confidently count upon his keen and valued support. It would be difficult to think of one with which he was not prominently identified. Mention must be made especially of his interest in the work of the Alice Memorial aid affiliated Hospitals, and also of his interest in the Y.M.C.A. particularly in the effort which was successfully crowned a few months ago by the opening of the handsome and commodious premises at Kowloon which now house the European branch of the Association. In the heyday of his prosperity the late Mr. Holyoak was a most liberal contributor to local charities and none who were here during the period of the war will forget his generous gifts to the War charities.

In local Freemasonry, the late Mr. Holyoak occupied the most exalted office, having been appointed by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught in 1921 to be the District Grand Master of English Freemasonry in Hongkong and South China.

Only a few months ago one who had been in close association with the Hon. Mr. Holyoak wrote of him:—"Residents who are willing to devote themselves actively to public work are few enough in Hongkong, as in other parts of the Empire, and, if it be wondered how an already busy man can find time to do so much, those who have worked with Mr. Holyoak can explain the mystery. It is the old story—the busy man is the man who finds time for extra work. A capacity for rapid assimilation of facts, a gift for grasping the essentials of a subject, a gift for clear self-expression alike in dealing with business correspondence and in public speech—these combine to form a mental equipment which has given Mr. Holyoak a well-deserved reputation for competence, has placed him in an outstanding position in this little community and would carry him far in larger and more important spheres. If tomorrow Hongkong were invited to send a representative to an Empire Parliament there is no doubt that the name of Mr. Holyoak would be the first to suggest itself as a candidate."

Reviewing his long career it will be universally agreed that by the death of Mr. Holyoak, Hongkong has lost one of its most public spirited citizens, a man, moreover, who has been deservedly held in the highest respect and esteem by all sections of the community for the past quarter of a century. A gap has been created in the public life of the Colony which it will not be easy to fill.

A GREAT CITIZEN OF HONGKONG.

[BY AN OLD FRIEND.]

I think it was John Morley who said of Joseph Chamberlain that "he possessed the genius of friendship." There was no man of his generation in this Colony to whom that phrase was so applicable as it was to Percy Hobson Holyoak. He was a true friend with a generous heart. There was nothing mean or contemptible about the man, whose sudden death has come as a great shock to the whole Colony. He set his course and looked out on to the big side of human nature. It is impossible to recall a word that was in any way uncharitable that came from his lips.

If ever there was a Freemason who tried hard to live according to the somewhat difficult ideals of that great Order of Brotherhood, it was the late District Grand Master for Hongkong and South China.

IN ADVERSITY.

Anyone can be genial in the times of prosperity, but the great heart that is now galled beat each stroke with the same steady sense of duty in the days of adversity as in the days of success.

It was the acid test of facing a big crisis in his life that revealed the depth of his character. He refused to set aside what he thought were his public duties as a citizen of Hongkong for his own private affairs.

Few men have been so suddenly and unexpectedly plunged into business difficulties. That fickle jade Fortune treated him, so it seemed, very badly.

When the news came to Hongkong it was not received with the whine of a coward. It nerved an energetic and fearless business man to Herculean efforts. If the old craft was sinking there was ingenuity and self reliance enough in the Hongkong office to build a raft and a bold and courageous man rode through the storm.

Then came the strike and the boycott. One anxiety was piled up on the top of another; almost daily.

He still refused to give up his duties to the Masonic Order, nor would he spare himself from the many public demands. He had, he knew, quite well, a weak heart, but he worked it at a five man-power rate.

IN FRIENDSHIP'S NAME.

He seemed to realise the great truth in the words "the only way to have a friend is to be one." He was always a friend to everyone. He might disagree with you about this or that but he was never bitter nor resentful. He would let you understand, when he had made up his mind, that you were no longer an acquaintance, but a friend. Two lines from Shakespeare often came to my memory as we sat at the round table atiffin time, where he was so happy with his friends. One was "If I do vow a friendship, I'll perform it to the last article." The other was "I count myself in nothing else so happy as in a soul remembering my good friends."

He won't forget us, although he has preceded some of us across the border. We, for our part, will never forget him. His was the courage, the generosity in thought and act, the self-sacrifice and the sturdy patriotism of which he was always unashamed.

DEEP SYMPATHY.

It is impossible to express our deepest thought. A merciful Providence has limited language lest sorrow should be made more permanent than any other human emotion. For grief stirs our innermost soul as does nothing else.

If only pen could convey to his nearest and dearest all that we feel for them in this time of trial! All that we ask is that they should think rather of his triumphant work for his fellow men than of their loss brought about by his great self-sacrifice. He would wish them to be unselfish, even in their grief.

His life was a reminder of the parable of the talents. He used his talent to the uttermost. Many a friend of his will re-echo the sentiment that few men in this Colony have been as worthy of the Colony's gratitude and respect.

ADMIRAL SEMINOFF.

RELIEVED OF HIS POST IN CANTON.

THE TALK OF WAR.

[FROM OUR CHINESE CORRESPONDENT.]

Admiral Seminoff, the Russian who was for sometime Chief of the Kuomintang Naval Bureau in Canton, has been relieved of his post as a member of the Preventive Service Commission by the Kuomintang. Admiral Seminoff has been absent from Canton for some months.

According to a Kuomintang communiqué, 15,000 men in nine regiments have been sent from Kwangsi to re-inforce the Kuomintang troops. The Kuomintang claim the recapture of Siangtan. The Kuomintang are sending, according to their statement, the 2nd Army Corps to invade Hunan, to be further augmented by a division from the 1st, 3rd, 4th, and 6th Army Corps. From similar sources, information is to hand that the movement by the Kuomintang Army on the northern borders of Kwangtung will be offensive and that along the Kiangsi and the Fukien borders, defensive. The Kuomintang say that they expect shortly to have more than 100,000 men on the front.

WHAMPOA "OLD BOYS."

At a recent meeting of former students of the Military Academy at Whampoa, called for the purpose of forming an old boys' association, it was stated that nearly 10,000 cadets have graduated from this institution. The academy was first organized under the old Tsing or Manchu Dynasty but was suspended during the first few years of the Republic. It was re-opened some three years ago with the aid of Soviet finance. At present many military posts are being held by former cadets of this academy. Most of the recent graduates have been trained under Russian supervision.

COMMUNISTS' ORGANISATION.

The League of Farmers, Workers, Students, and Merchants, is the name under which the Communists and the members of the Third International will operate in future. The executive committee of this League met for the first time on May 25th at the General Chamber of Commerce rooms in Canton; and to show that they were not opposed to the Kuomintang, they opened the proceedings by the usual salutations to the portrait of the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen and the Kuomintang insignia, and with the reading of Dr. Sun's last will and testament.

PRISONERS GROWING IMPATIENT.

The 800 inmates in the Canton City Jail awaiting trial for various charges before the Canton District Court made an ugly demonstration several evenings ago as a protest against their indefinite imprisonment without a hearing. Some 400 of them have been detained by the District Procurator or Attorney for investigations only and have not been charged up to date. The Kuomintang Judicial Commission has now instructed the courts to take immediate action to clear the cases. According to law, one may not be imprisoned for more than 25 days without a hearing. Some 230 of the inmates have been detained without a trial since January 1st this year and 17 have been detained since February, 1925.

MORE JUDGES REQUIRED.

In order to obtain more and better judges, the Kuomintang announce that in June next an examination will be held to select candidates for law officers. To be eligible for examination, a candidate must be a graduate of a law school offering a three year course in jurisprudence.

GOOD ROADS.

The advocates of the "good roads movement" are not allowing this constant talk of war to interfere with their activities. The National Highway Society, under the leadership of Dr. C. T. Wang, a former Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Mr. George Hsu Chien, a former Minister of Justice in Canton, have written to Canton requesting co-operation in the launching of a membership and publicity campaign in South China.

THE LATE MR. P. H. HOLYOAK.

By the death of Mr. P. H. HOLYOAK

Hongkong loses one of the few members of its business community who have taken an active interest in public affairs.

He came into prominence some eleven years ago when he defeated Mr. J. W. C.

BONNAR in the election of a Chamber of Commerce representative to the Legislative Council, and since that time he devoted himself wholeheartedly to the public service. He had, of course, his detractors. In a small Colony where, owing to the lack of permanent residents,

the general attitude towards community affairs is one almost of indifference any man who boldly takes the lead, and shows initiative outside of the conduct of his own business, has a particularly thankless task. True, he has his supporters, but there are never lacking those who are ready to impute motives of self-advertisement and personal gain as the mainspring of public endeavour.

Mr. HOLYOAK served the public faithfully and well, and to the detriment, possibly, of his own private interests. At any rate we know that his public work occupied a great proportion of his time.

This time was always ungrudgingly given, but it meant constant strain and quite probably hastened his end. He deserved well of Hongkong and it would be a distinct advantage to the Colony

if it possessed more men of his calibre.

The gap created by his deeply regretted death will be one most difficult to fill.

THE ATTACK ON THE BRITISH CONSUL AT SWATOW.

Our Swatow correspondent informs us that the Strike pickets are still in absolute control of that Port, and the short cabled account of the attack on the British Consul, which appeared in the Daily Press on Tuesday, bears out his statement. We cannot believe that the Canton officials would countenance such an outrage and can only attribute it to the fact that during the past few weeks large numbers of troops from the district have been recalled to Canton. At the present moment, it seems, the military are the only body who can maintain any semblance of order. When they are away the extremists—for the most part gangs of irresponsible acting under the name of Strike leaders—are apparently only too happy to bring the Government into disrepute.

The unfortunate incident in Swatow arose simply and solely from the action of the Communists. The British Consul was at an interview with the Foreign Commissioner when a number of "pickets" amused themselves by plastering the walls of the Consulate building with communist posters. It is difficult to imagine anything more calculated to provoke ill-feeling. When the Consul returned and saw what was happening he endeavoured to avoid an open rupture with the men and, unnoticed, gained access to the premises by a side entrance. He then commenced naturally to pull down the offending placards. A little later he was observed by the pickets and they immediately adopted a threatening attitude. One called out "hit him" and the fight began. It seems certain that the pickets would have followed their victim into the Consulate building had they not seen that one or two other foreigners were there. They were too ignorant to appreciate the seriousness of their offence or to realise the consequences that were bound to follow. They were stopped simply by fear that they might come off second best in the encounter.

The whole affair was noticed by H.M.S. "Hollyhock" and before the signal was made from the Consulate a landing party was on its way from the gunboat. There was absolutely no excuse for this outrageous assault on a British official and it is to be hoped, therefore, that General CHIANG KAI SHEK and his colleagues will insist upon the punishment of the ringleaders. It is the only way they can maintain their good name and convince the world that they are sincere in their denunciation of "Bolshevik" excesses.

A Chinese woman committed suicide in Stanley Village on Tuesday by taking poison.

The Netherland Indian Government has declared Amoy to be an infected place on account of plague.

The annual general meeting of the Hongkong Polo Club was held at the Club's Pavilion last evening.

A dog belonging to Mr. Stevenson of the Dairy Farm Company bit a Chinese in Mr. Stevenson's employ on Tuesday.

The closing of the entries in connection with the Palace Hotel Billiard Handicap has been postponed until Monday next.

At the Central Magistracy yesterday, several Chinese were fined $5 each for firing off crackers in the vicinity of the Government Civil Hospital.

The ordinary general meeting of shareholders of the Douglas Steamship Company will be held on Friday, June 11th, at the offices of the Company.

Yesterday Her Majesty Queen Mary celebrated her fifty-ninth birthday. At noon a salute in honour of the occasion was fired by the warships in harbour.

A Chinese died in a cargo boat in the harbour on Tuesday from the effects of fish poisoning. Later, two women were removed from the same boat to the Kwong Wah Hospital.

At the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon a Chinese girl was remanded on a charge of the theft of money and jewellery to the value of $400 from a friend's house in Yamati.

While a Chinese leper was being conveyed across the harbour yesterday to Kowloon where he would be escorted to Shum Chun, he jumped into the water. He was rescued by the crew of a police launch.

A Chinese prisoner at Taipo Police Station, New Territories, escaped from custody yesterday morning. The brief report received at Police Headquarters gives no details of how the escape was effected.

At the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday before Mr. J. H. B. Nihil, a Chinese assistant baker was fined $50 with the alternative of six weeks' hard labour for stealing various foodstuffs from the Empress of Russia.

Mr. R. Baldwin, the organist of St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, who recently arrived in the Colony from Home, is to give his first organ recital on Sunday evening, during the evening service. Solos will be rendered by Miss F. McGill and Mr. J. W. Baldwin.

The packet containing a cheque for $24 which Mr. W. H. Newman, of H.M. Dockyard, reported as missing on Friday last has now been found. It will be remembered that Mr. Newman gave the packet to a messenger of the Royal Armaments Depot, to take to the Post Office and it was lost on the way.

Mr. Reid, of Broadwood Road, was fined $10 at the Central Magistracy yesterday, for allowing his dog to be abroad unmuzzled on May 10th. The Japanese caretaker of the Japanese Crematorium, Sookunpo, was fined $40 for keeping four dogs without licences. Fines ranging from $5 to $10 were imposed on a number of Chinese summoned for similar offences.

The jubilee issue of Green and White, the magazine of St. Joseph's College, gives an interesting historical review of the institution. Other articles include "Opening of the New Building," "St. Joseph's College Golden Jubilee Celebration," "The First Vicar Apostolic of Hongkong," "Sir Cecil Clementi on Education," and "The Josephians at Hongkong University."

Damage estimated at 30,000 pesos, has been caused by a fire which destroyed the front section of the Columbia Club at Manila in the early hours of Friday morning. It is thought that the outbreak started through defective wiring. The building is owned by the Cathedral of St. Mary and St. John and is insured with Messrs. R. E. Eber & Co. for 45,000 pesos; while the contents are insured for 7,500 pesos. The flames were not extinguished until 4.45 p.m. Office supplies and utensils were destroyed, and sixty silver trophies won by the club in various sporting contests were melted; while Mr. C. A. Colburn, secretary of the club lost personal effects valued at 450 pesos. Two billiard tables, valued at 500 pesos, were also destroyed. The police are carrying out investigations.

PRESENTATIONS TO MR. HOOPER.

GOODWILL OF EUROPEAN AND CHINESE STAFFS.

FAREWELL DINNER FROM SKITTLE ALLEY.

As stated in the Daily Press last week Mr. J. Hooper, accountant of the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Co., Ltd., and the Star Ferry Co., Ltd., is leaving by the Empress of Russia tomorrow on retirement, thus ending a business career of over thirty-four years in the Colony.

During the past few days he has been the recipient of a number of gifts expressing the goodwill of both the European and Chinese staff of the Companies with which he has been associated. He was presented with a travelling clock and two handsome gold watches (one for himself and one for his wife) from the European staff of the Godown Company, with a valuable dinner service and tea service from the Compradores and with two beautiful Chinese lampshades mounted on high blackwood stands from the Chinese and Indian staffs. In addition Mr. Hooper received a red silk tapestry scroll upon which finely worked Chinese characters extolled his virtues, described his sterling qualities and wished him good luck, long life and health and happiness. This was a gift from the Chinese office staff.

A RECORD OF GOOD SERVICE.

Mr. F. H. Crapnell, Secretary and Manager of the Godown and Ferry Companies, made the presentations on behalf of the staffs and, in doing so, paid a high tribute to Mr. Hooper's service. Mr. Hooper, he said, came to Hongkong to join the Canadian Pacific Railway staff in 1891. He left them to join the Godown Co. in March, 1894. Mr. Hooper had been connected with the "Star" Ferry Co. since its inception and had been in charge of the accounts for practically the whole of the time. He had discharged his trust in a very able manner and the Companies were losing a very valued servant, and one whose place it would be difficult to fill. While the staffs and the Companies were very sorry to lose him, yet they were all glad that he was able to enter into his well earned retirement in good health and in good time to be able to enjoy it. Everyone wished many years of happiness for him and his wife at Home.

FAREWELL DINNER.

In his earlier days Mr. Hooper was a keen cricketer and rugby football player but of later years he has devoted himself to golf and bowls.

He will be particularly missed by the "lads of the skittle alley" at the Hongkong Club. They recently gave him a farewell dinner and presented him with a handsome silver salver as a token of remembrance.

JAPANESE DISASTER.

EYE-WITNESSES' STORY OF THE ERUPTION.

FURTHER VOLCANIC OUTBURST FEARED.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Tokyo, May 26th.

From eye-witnesses, it appears that the third eruption of Mount Tokachi was the worst, as the lava freed a mountain lake which swept a thirty-foot wall of water down the hillside, wrecking and obliterating farms and houses, whilst the lava poured down from two craters, engulfing farms, villages and the railway.

The main crater is on the summit of Mount Tokachi, but it extends to a spur called Mount Two, from both of which lava belched forth and rocks rained down throughout Monday night, though the volcanoes are now quiescent, with only voluminous clouds of smoke issuing from the sulphurous crater.

WARNED BY RUMBLINGS.

LATER.

Warned by preliminary rumblings, many escaped before the eruption and the flood several hours later. Many farmers working in the fields were saved, but lost whole families in the villages, and are demoralized by their loss.

The train from Asahi Gawa, warned by rumblings, turned back, and thereby saved itself from being engulfed by the flowing lava.

Though the flood rushed down at a furious speed on the village of Biei, an embankment near its entrance checked the waters, and most inhabitants were able to escape.

It is reported that at Kamifurano some 200 villagers were washed away, and it is feared that the Matuyama Spa is a total loss, though no definite news is yet available.

RELIEF WORK.

It is reported that many bodies are floating down the Furano River, which has overflowed its banks, adding misery to the situation, whilst considerable anxiety is felt regarding the mining villages connected with the Hirayama Sulphur Mining Company.

A relief corps, including doctors and nurses, an infantry detachment, and ex-servicemen, were rushed to the scene from Asahi Gawa as soon as news of the catastrophe was learned, but the work is severely hampered by the condition of the countryside as a result of the flood, whilst several feet of lava covering the railway tracks prevented the train from reaching Biei, though everything possible is being done to help the injured and the thousands of homeless.

REVISED CASUALTY LIST.

LATER.

The Governor of Hokkaido has reported that 100 are dead and over 200 injured. A thousand people are missing.

FURTHER ERUPTION FEARED.

LATER.

Latest reports from Hokkaido state that 144 bodies have been recovered. It is estimated that two million yen damage has been done.

Rescue work is hampered by a thick mist. The volcano is still emitting ashes intermittently, and a further eruption is feared.

GERMAN TRAIN SMASH.

MANY KILLED AND INJURED IN COLLISION.

Munich, May 25th.

The total casualties as the result of the train accident (reported earlier) were 23 killed and 100 injured.

A previous message stated:—Twenty four were killed and many injured as the result of a collision between two passenger trains in the station at Munich.

ASSASSINATION IN PARIS.

FORMER HETMAN OF UKRAINE SHOT DEAD.

Paris, May 25th.

General Petlura, who was Hetman of Ukraine in last year's war, was shot dead by a Russian Jew named Schwartzbar, in the busy Boulevard Saint Michel this afternoon. Schwartzbar, when arrested, said that General Petlura oppressed the Ukrainian Jews during his Hetmanship.

LIBERAL LEADERS' DIFFERENCES.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN EARL ASQUITH AND "L.C."

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

London, May 26th.

A definite break between the Liberal leaders is marked by the publication of correspondence between the Earl of Oxford and Mr. Lloyd George. The former regrets the course pursued by Mr. Lloyd George when the Liberal Party united against the "anti-social campaign and general strike." He rebukes Mr. Lloyd George for the latter's declaration of disagreement with the statements of the Earl of Oxford, Earl Grey of Fallodon, and Sir John Simon published in the British Gazette.

He deplores Mr. Lloyd George's contributions to the American Press "containing a desponding, though highly coloured picture of our national straits."

Mr. Lloyd George, in his reply, couched in moderate terms, defends his attitude during the General Strike, and declares his American newspaper article on the strike had been misrepresented in England, although he admits he miscalculated the course of events, and concludes by offering to meet Mr. Asquith and other Liberal leaders to discuss the position.

THE POLISH UPHEAVAL.

GENERAL PILSUDSKI AND MOTIVES BEHIND REVOLT.

Warsaw, May 26th.

How Poland escaped a dictatorship is explained by General Pilsudski, who in an interview with Reuter said: "For six months I was vainly striving for the execution of moral and political reforms in Poland, and particularly the Army. What particularly annoyed me was the impunity enjoyed by the new rich. This decided me to act, but only against the Government, not against the President."

General Pilsudski regretted the President's refusal to treat with him and the failure of his attempts at mediation. He spoke of his final victory, and said he did not desire a dictatorship, which would throw the whole burden of affairs on one man which would mean arduous daily toil to accomplish the many necessary reforms to the State.

He said he was proud to have accomplished something unique—carrying out the coup de tat, which he immediately legalised as a sort of revolution without revolutionary results. Pilsudski evaded the question whether he would accept Presidency, and said he was awaiting the nomination of a number of candidates, whom he would afterwards summon to his house and demand a joint undertaking that they would have no connection with political parties, banks, business groups or similar interests.

THE FRANC.

GOVERNMENT'S STERN PROTECTION MEASURES.

Paris, May 25th.

The Government has taken a further step in the direction of tightening up measures to protect the franc. From June 25th exporters will be obliged to make a monthly declaration showing they have repatriated within three months sums received from abroad for their products. The penalty will be fines and imprisonment.

[THROUGH HAVAS AGENCY.]

PARIS-TOKYO FLIGHT.

FRENCH AVIATOR ARRIVES AT WARSAW.

Warsaw, May 25th.

Pelletier D'Oisy on his flight to Tokyo has arrived here.

D'OISY'S OBJECTIVE.

D'Oisy's ultimate destination is Tokyo. He intends on this occasion to rival the Trans-Siberian Railway, necessitating a daily average flight of 100 to 200 miles, hitherto not achieved by aeroplanes over vast distances.

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

THE AMERICAN FLIGHT.

ARGENTINE AVIATOR REACHES CHARLESTON.

New York, May 25th.

A message from Charleston says that the Argentine aviator, Bernardo Dugan, has arrived.

ANOTHER JAPANESE CATASTROPHE.

IRRIGATION RESERVOIR BURSTS ITS BANKS.

HALF A TOWN WASHED AWAY.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Tokyo, May 26th.

A report from Akita states that this afternoon, with a tremendous roar, the Mayama Irrigation Reservoir in Akita Prefecture, Northern Japan, burst its banks, sweeping away half the town of Kitaura, including the Post Office, bank, theatre and other buildings.

Details of the casualties are not yet available, but it is feared they are heavy. The population numbered 7,000.

ABOUT 400 DEAD.

LATER.

A semi-official report received in Tokyo states that about 400 are believed to have been killed, but accurate details are not obtainable, owing to the interruption of communication.

Seventeen bodies have been recovered, and it is feared many were injured. Eighty buildings were completely washed away, including the Town Hall.

WHERE THE CHURCH GOES WRONG.

SIR OLIVER LODGE'S OPINION.

UNSOUND CREEDS.

It is a question which I put without presuming to answer, but are there not many ecclesiastical creeds, on which we have been ready to communicate, to torture, and to burn, which are not among divine essentials at all, but are mere human interpretations, exaggerations and conventions?

Sir Oliver Lodge, speaking at Brighton in connection with the centenary of Holy Trinity Church, made a strong appeal to the Church "to concentrate on the truths that unite us, and not on the details which make for separation."

The Bishop of London, the Bishop of Durham, and Bishop Russell Wakefield, formerly of Birmingham, the Mayor and Corporation of Brighton, and forty clergymen, representing Anglo-Catholicism and Evangelicalism marched in procession through the streets in connection with the celebrations.

At the luncheon which followed the Countess of Chichester received gifts for the Robertson Memorial Hall Fund, which has been inaugurated in memory of the Rev. F. W. Robertson, who made the church famous.

CONVENTION AND REALITY.

Sir Oliver, speaking at the luncheon, took the introduction of Summer Time as an illustration of his statement that it is reality, and not convention, that is permanent.

"There are those who object," he said, "those who say we are playing hanky-panky with the sun, and who speak of 'God's time'."

"Noon and midnight are realities, but that noon should be signalled by twelve strokes is a convention. It may just as well be signalled by one. Clocks are at our disposal. Sundials can be easily adjusted."

"When the priests wanted to give comfort to their good but rather superstitious patron King Hozekiah, and made their early attempts at faith healing as a supplement to a fig poultice, they found they could juggle the pointer on the dial of Ahaz ten degrees either way, giving him the option."

MISTAKES OF SCIENCE.

"We are learning in science, especially of late years, to discriminate closely between what we have put into the universe by our mental interpretations and what is really there—to draw a distinction between the relative and the absolute, the real and the conventional."

"Sir Oliver then used the sentence quoted above, and went on:—

"At present the Church, even the Anglican Church, is far too fond of getting people into a hole and making them swear things—like this I steadfastly believe," and phrases like that, especially when they are infants or when they are sick."

"I venture to think also that it puts obstacles in the way of those who otherwise desire to be ordained to the ministry, and that until a radical search is made into what is permanently and divinely true, as contrasted with what is humanly convenient and at present accepted, the supply of candidates will be more and more meagre. It should not be the function of the Church to manufacture heresy."

DARING DOCTOR'S CANCER EXPERIMENT.

WHAT IT PROVED.

Dr. Kurtzahn, of Koenigsberg, announced at the German Surgical Society's Congress at Berlin that, as the result of vaccinating himself with a particle of cancer tumor, he had proved that cancer was not contagious. The surrounding tissues had not been affected, and the marks of the vaccination soon disappeared.

GOOD WILL.

[By Lord Buckmaster, Former Lord Chancellor of England.]

Those who were privileged to attend the luncheon given by the Daily Mail at the Savoy Hotel (reference to which was made in the Hongkong Daily Press on Tuesday) left with the feeling that they had taken part in a notable event. Eight practical workmen representing every branch of the engineering industry had returned from their visit to the United States, and were present, willing to give to all the benefit of their experience.

What they said was of the utmost interest, and I should like to give the effect of its impression upon my mind.

In the first place it is essential to remember that these eight delegates were each and all of them members of some of the most important trade unions in the country. They had been selected for their mission by a man absolutely independent of the newspapers. They were under no influence, they were subject to no control, and they owed no duty to anyone except the plain duty of telling the truth. They had been brought for the first time into sudden and close contact with the vast industries of the United States, and it might have been expected that the result would have been a shock similar to that of touching a live electric wire, but none the less, the first thing on which all of them laid the greatest emphasis was their absolute confidence in British industry, a conscious pride in the great work that it has done, and a firm faith in its possibilities for the future.

It was also plain that great as they thought these possibilities might be, they realised that they were conditional, and that the first and the most essential condition of all was to promote good feeling throughout all branches of trade and to establish universally a sense of unity and good will.

CO-OPERATION AND FELLOWSHIP.

"A fine thing," as one of the delegates said, "in America was the spirit of co-operation and fellowship. Everybody in the industry, from the highest official to the man sweeping the floor, was animated by a real spirit of fellowship. Like all combinations, whether in the region of chemistry or in the business of life, real union can only be accomplished by the action of all elements concerned. Misunderstanding, distrust, and dislike are in many cases driven the parties here apart, and both sides must make an effort if they are to be united."

No one who has ever been in the United States can have failed to realise that this point, upon which such emphasis was rightly placed, lies at the centre of their commercial success.

The next proceeds from the first. It is the willingness and eagerness of everybody to increase output. Without the common fellowship and common purpose of all, this result is impossible. The workman here thinks that his increased output goes merely to swell the profits of the employer and, it may be, also to prevent some other workman from doing the work, and that, in any event, increased or diminished output is determined upon solely in the interests of the capital employed in the industry.

HIGHER STATUS OF LABOUR.

Two further points of immense consequence seem to have met these delegates at every turn. The one, that the higher the wages any industry paid the better it was for industry everywhere; that a high standard of life and a high standard of work went hand in hand, and that every workman was working with the hope of advancement and the belief that this advancement depended solely on his own efforts. The readiness of employers to scrap old machinery and to embark on every form of adventurous expense that could give the greatest effect to human labour seems to have been present everywhere, together with the absence of the stereotyped conditions which train a man for one branch of work and then place restrictions to prevent him adopting anything else.

It is to be hoped that the voices of these men and their experience will be heard and felt throughout this country. No one who has the most trifling knowledge of American industry can fail to realise the truth of what they say. The condition of labour over there is easier than here—easier not merely by reason of shorter hours or of lessened labour but by reason of the environment in which it is placed and the high standard of wages that it commands. I am not sure that the environment is not as important as the wage.

"I spoke to a workman myself in America during last summer. He had come from England, was married, and was bringing his children up out there. He still retained a deep affection for his native country, and he said it was not the question of higher wages that made him remain away. When I asked what it was, he said he was a tree man over there and not here."

It did not take long to explain to him that if freedom had any relation to liberty he was immeasurably more free over here; but that was not the freedom that he meant. He meant what one of the delegates said, that there were no lines of demarcation between one class and another, and that labour was recognised as being dignified and important whether it was performed with the head or with the hands."

SECRET OF HIGH WAGES.

He also meant something more. It was the freedom to use his labour as he wished, to employ it under any conditions, and to use it so as to produce the maximum result, which was, what he meant by liberty.

OUR LUXURY TAXES.

[By C.O.]

These proposed luxury taxes, which we are told the Chancellor of the Exchequer is to spring on us, may seem very alarming at first sight, but, as a matter of fact, it will be quite easy to evade them. Take, for instance, the tax on diamonds. The scene is, say, Grosvenor-square:—

"My dear, I was going to buy a nice necklace of diamonds to-day, but I decided not to do so."

"What a nuisance. Why?"

"They've gone and put a tax on them. So I've brought you these nice flowers instead."

"How sweet of you. They'll do just as well. I do so love putting it across the Revenue like that. Ring for some water."

"Oh, and by the way, I don't think I shall be able to get you those tables after all. They've put a tax on furs, too."

"Oh, dear! What do you suggest then?"

"We need a lot of new linoleum. There's no tax on that."

"Happy thought. But it must be the best."

"Yes, my love. I'll see to that."

That would warn the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

In any case, why should he stop at furs, diamonds, and the more expensive motor-cars? We could, for instance, have a tax on bigamists. It might not bring in much, but that little would have a highly moral flavour. What is more, it would give the officials a chance to butt a little more into our domestic affairs, which, as everybody knows, is the object of all good government.

The Chancellor would announce the tax in the customary way:—

"And I shall leave no stone unturned to see that every bigamist, of whatever shade of political opinion."

An Hon. Member: Bigamists do not live under stones. They live in service flats."

The Chancellor: I say I shall leave no stone unturned, and no avenue unexplored."

The Hon. Member: Not even Shaftesbury-avenue?

The Chancellor: No, sir. That least of all."

As so to the taxgatherer:—

The Taxgatherer: Are you a bigamist?

Mr. J. Smith: Yes.

The Taxgatherer: How many wives have you?

Mr. J. Smith: One.

The Taxgatherer: Then how can you be a bigamist?

Mr. J. Smith: Because I thought I'd only married one, but she's turned out to be a handful. How much will that be under Schedule Z?

The Taxgatherer: You won't have to pay anything. The Government allows up to one wife.

Mr. J. Smith: And don't you call one wife a luxury?

The Taxgatherer: Certainly not.

Mr. J. Smith: Well, then, you don't jolly well know what you're talking about, and I shall vote Labour next time."

That might rattle the Government a little too. The curious thing is that in their anxiety to tax us into living the simple life they have overlooked the most obvious and most expensive luxury of all. They have forgotten the politicians.

A politician may or may not be popular. It depends so much on his wife. But what is quite certain is that a tax on him would be wildly popular. Any Government, no matter what else it had done, would march to victory on a programme limited to a heavy tax on politicians.

The tax could be so beautifully graduated. For an ordinary M.P., £400 per annum. For an Under-Secretary, £1,500 per annum. For an ordinary Cabinet Minister, £5,000 per annum. And for a Chancellor of the Exchequer, half a million. In fact, for some Chancellors of the Exchequer one could not possibly put their taxable value too high.

It would give the country a novel and abounding confidence in its legislators if it knew that our most lavish luxuries were thus taxed at the very source, and that before a man could spend our money he would have to deposit a lot of his own.

The objection would no doubt be raised—principally by politicians' wives—that just as furs and diamonds will tend to disappear from circulation so would politicians. But that, to all right-thinking people, is exactly where the incidence of such a tax would most beneficially be felt.—Evening Standard.

It needs no vision to realise that the conditions here and the conditions there are wide apart. In the last resort there is opportunity on the land, both in the United States and in Canada, for any man of vigour and energy; and that fact, together with the multiplicity of their industries and the adaptability of labour, prevents workmen from being faced with the abyss of unemployment which over here has too often stared them in the face. It is their dread of this catastrophe to which are due all the influences that limit output. If a man lays 4,000 bricks a day, he is, according to this view, doing the work of two men, each of whom could lay 2,000, and this fact obscures the greater fact that to do the output the more work there is to do.

The real lesson lies in this: that it is increased output and not learned wages on which the prosperity of any industry depends, and that, subject to all conditions being preserved that secure a man from excessive physical effort and fatigue, the more a man can possibly put out during his hours of labour the better it is for him and for all others similarly circumstanced.

These delegates have brought back with them a new atmosphere which is like a breath of fresh air in a stuffy room, and it cannot be too widely diffused.

TEMPLE 4,000 YEARS OLD.

NEW FINDS NEAR BABYLON.

The British Museum authorities recently issued another report of the work of the joint Expedition of the British Museum and of the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania, which is exploring Ur of the Chaldees (the birthplace of Abraham), 140 miles south-east of Babylon.

The following are extracts from the report:—

"We found a very fine female head carved in black diorite (granite-like rock), an admirable example of Third Dynasty sculpture dating from about 2300 B.C."

"We found not only a double boundary wall dating from the Kassite age of about 1400 B.C., but below this the remains of the chamber wall built originally by Ur-Engur round the terrace on which stood his ziggurat (the huge two-storey stage-tower of the Moon God set up by King Ur-Engur about 2,200 years before Christ); and under this again walls of pudding-shaped mud bricks which must go back to the fourth millennium before Christ; there could be no doubt that these, too, were the enclosing walls of a ziggurat platform, and we can conclude from this that underneath the millions of bricks piled up by Ur-Engur's workmen there lie buried the remains of another ziggurat older by many centuries."

We were able to recover nearly all of a very interesting plan, a temple with two official residences attached to it, and under one ruined corner had the good luck to find undisturbed the foundation-box of burnt brick containing the copper statuette of the king bearing on his head the basket of mud mortar for the laying of the first brick of the building."

"LAWN TENNIS AND HOW TO PLAY IT."

BY SUZANNE LENGLEN.

No. 2.

FIRST STEPS IN PLAYING. . . GETTING THE RIGHT
IDEA FROM THE START. . . HOW TO HOLD THE RACKET GRIP FOR THE FORE-HAND STROKE. . . AND THE BACK-HAND.

(THE THIRD OF THIS SERIES OF ARTICLES BY MRS. SUZANNE LENGLEN, WILL APPEAR IN THE "DAILY PRESS" ON THURSDAY NEXT—ALL RIGHTS RE-SERVED.)

Lawn Tennis looks so easy, doesn't it, when you see two experts playing it? Yet through how many dreary hours of despair must a beginner live before he can reach even average form.

I wonder if it will encourage the beginner to know that a good many players who have reached one point, and who stick there, wish that they could begin all over again! They won't do it, of course, because while they are unlearning their faults they will play worse than ever, but it would be a very good thing for them if they would do so.

The trouble is that most players start wrong. There are not enough lawn tennis coaches in the country to go round. A man or a girl buys a racket, joins a club, watches indifferent players, and copies their faults.

There are men and women in lawn tennis to-day, the Wimbledon class of lawn tennis I mean, who, if they had only begun right, would be now very near to championship form. Yet they stick where they are, and, so set are their faults, that they cannot ever hope to improve.

Now that is the reason why I am going to insist on little details at the start. You may think I'm writing about things that don't matter, but, believe me, I'm not. Every little detail counts, and if you get one of them wrong you will pay the penalty.

HOW TO HOLD THE RACKET.

Everybody, I suppose, thinks they know how to hold a racket. Simplest thing in the world, isn't it? Don't get running away with any idea like that!

To begin with, in England, people are under a bit of a handicap. Those great players the Dohertys used to use what was called the "unchanged grip." You know that in lawn tennis there is a fore-hand and a back-hand stroke, and in making both these, those great brothers did not alter their hold on the racket.

Now don't get this wrong! It suited them and their style of game, and in their day there was no one in the world to beat them. But the unchanged grip does not suit one player in a hundred. Take Miss Joan Fry, for instance, who met me in the final last year.

She held her racket perfectly for her fore-hand stroke, but she never altered her grip when she wanted to hit a ball back-hand. This year, I hear, she is altering her grip, and her game cannot fail to improve.

THE FORE-HAND STROKE.

First let's deal with the grip for the fore-hand stroke. Your hand and fingers should lie rather along than across the handle, if you know what I mean. Perhaps it will make it clearer if I say that, holding your racket with your arm at full stretch, the racket should be in a straight line with your arm. Don't try to get it quite in a straight line if you feel it cramps your wrist. You must be able to wave it backwards and forwards with the greatest freedom, without any suspicion of cramp. Let the leather, on the handle, rest, not in the middle of the hand, but where the wrist joins the hand. You must not let it get in the way of course, but that is about the place for it.

There is no need for you, just yet, to go and practise on a court. Practise aiming at a ball—an imaginary ball—that is—with your arm at full strength. To do this you must stand sideways to the ball. There is hardly a shot in lawn tennis which you play facing the net—that is,

with your shoulders square on to the net. Stand sideways, with your left foot pointing in the direction in which you wish the ball to go, and your weight on your right foot. As you hit, follow through—I shall have a lot more to say about that later on—and transfer the weight to the left foot, so as to get the whole of the body into the stroke. Do you see what I mean? Well, that's enough to go on with for the moment. Mind, racket in line with arm, arm at full stretch, follow through, and feel that you are getting the weight of your body, as well as the force of your wrist and arm, into the shot. Never mind about the back-hand stroke yet. That'll come later.

THE BUGBEAR—THE BACK-HAND STROKE!

Now if you are beginning to feel, that when you do go on a court, you may be able to hit a ball, with what we call the fore-hand stroke, I want you to make an experiment, just to satisfy yourself. I want you to feel what's wrong, and what's right with the various strokes.

Hold your racket just as you have been doing. Only now turn with your right side facing the supposed net, instead of the left. Suppose a ball is coming at you which you must play back-hand. Make a sweep of it, without altering your grip.

Doesn't feel the same, does it? You haven't got any power behind the shot have you? It's just a wave of the racket, instead of a stroke with force behind it. Exactly!

Now this back-hand stroke is very difficult to describe in mere words, so I must ask to read carefully.

Keep your grip just as it is and rest the spine of the racket—that's the triangular bit between the handle and the frame—on your left hand. I want the face of the racket to be at right angles with the ground, facing the net. Now slide your right hand backwards, a quarter of the way round the racket. Alter the position of your thumb so that it lies along the back of the handle—and you have the back hand grip as it ought to be used.

Now I want to get this absolutely right, so I will describe it another way.

Stretch your right arm out, straight in front of you with the palm facing the ground. Now draw your arm in, keeping the fore-arm, wrist and hand, straight out, with your elbow to your side. Your left hand is holding the racket by the spine, at right angles to the ground. Place the handle, of the racket in the right hand, with the thumb behind, and you have the back-hand grip.

I hope that from these two descriptions you will be able to get an idea of what I mean, and you must do so before ever you go on a court. The back-hand is the weakness of ninety-nine players out of a hundred, and most of that weakness springs from the fact that they do not know how to hold their racket for the shot.

If you have mastered these two things up to now, I can assure you that you know, already, a good deal more about lawn tennis than most players do who have been at the game for years. It may all seem very simple. Lawn tennis looks simple, as I said, in the hands of experts. It is simple, as a matter of fact, if you will take the trouble to master the details. For it is the details that count in the making of what we call "good form."

AIR TRIP AT 86.

OLD LADY WHO ENJOYED THE THRILLS.

"Fine," exclaimed Mrs. Elizabeth Fuller, aged 86, of Plymouth, when she landed from her first aeroplane trip! Hearing that a number of free flights were to be given to women, Mrs. Fuller wrote saying she hoped she would be chosen. A car was sent to take her to the flying ground, and she was wrapped in an airman's coat and a helmet was placed on her head.

When in the air she laughed gleefully as the machine banked, and in descending expressed regret that she could not make a long air journey. Mrs. Fuller said she would like to venture on the (Continued at foot of next column.)

wings of an aeroplane. "There are plenty of wires to catch hold of," she said; "I should not fall off!"

Twenty Plymouth women have offered to make parachute descents from an aeroplane, and one of them is to be allowed to perform the feat.

BILLIARDS

CLAUDE FALKNER'S BRILLIANT DISPLAY.

Claude Falkner, who is one of the finest billiards players in England gave a brilliant display at the Chinese Club last night when he played a game of 800 up with Leung Kam Kwong, ex-champion of the Colony.

Only on three occasions did he go to the table without scoring a point, but even on those visits he missed his shot by an ace only. His highest break was 244, his second best 176, and his third 119. He visited the table 19 times and his average score was about 50. His opponent played somewhat poorly, scoring 110 only when Falkner ran out. His highest break was 17.

Falkner was particularly brilliant in playing nursery cannons at the top of the table, and was continually applauded. He manoeuvred the balls beautifully, and played throughout with ease and surety.

On his first visit to the table he could only compile 15, missing a fairly easy red "loser." The same ill-luck dogged him on his second visit, when he scored 21. Leung replied with 17, and in this break made some clever shots. Reaching 17 on his third visit, Falkner put himself in an awkward position, but brought off a brilliant cannon. He, however, failed to go further. After a break of 43, to which Leung replied with 7, Falkner got into his stride and kept the balls at the top of the table. Several series of nursery cannons, alternated with red "losers," and red winners, brought his break up to 244, when having the balls in a fine position he failed at a red "loser." He was very unfortunate in failing with the stroke.

At the next visit he scored 53, and on the two following visits failed to score. Leung compiled nine, and having pocketed his opponent's ball gave him a double bank. Falkner missed. He later missed in playing a back screw cannon. Later, he again gave a brilliant display in compiling 475, scoring profusely with nursery cannons and red "losers." His downfall came again through a miscue.

This was his last visit to the table, and it was perhaps his most brilliant display, particularly as regards nursery cannons. When he concluded his score was 536.

There was a good attendance, and the exhibition was thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. Falkner will play another exhibition game of billiards with Mr. Osmund as his opponent at the Club Lusitano on Saturday evening. The exhibition is open to lady and gentlemen friends of members of the Club. Tickets of admission can be obtained from the Secretary's office.

"GEE-WHIZ BANGS" OF CRICKET.

THROWING-IN AT 120 MILES AN HOUR AT THE OVAL.

LESSONS FROM U.S.

To train Surrey county cricket fielders to hurl a ball at a speed of 120 miles an hour is part of the ambition of "Pitcher" Muirhead, the Canadian baseball player, who has been engaged by Mr. P. G. H. Fender to show the Surrey team how baseball men throw.

Mr. Muirhead has seven broken fingers to prove his devotion to baseball.

"I don't know whether I can show anything to the Surrey boys," he told a reporter, "but if I can do anything to make things interesting for the crowd at the Oval I certainly will."

PRECIOUS SECONDS.

The idea is not mine at all. Mr. Fender, the Surrey captain, has seen a good deal of baseball in America, and thought that some of the baseball players' finger and arm habits might be of use to cricket fielders. So he approached the Anglo-American Baseball League, which plays matches at Stamford Bridge every Sunday in the summer.

"I volunteered to 'perform' for Surrey at once. This idea has nothing to do with bowling. It is purely to help the fielder. When seconds are precious the vital thing is to get the ball in at once."

The baseball player has to throw in his ball in a straight line, and not in a more or less dropping shot. The whole of his technique helps him to send the ball straight and fast.

Statistical experts have figured out that a good baseball player can make the ball leave his hand at 120 miles an hour.

When a ball goes at this speed there is of course tremendous force behind it. Of my fingers, excluding my thumbs, seven have been broken and the ends are bent.

The baseball man is so trained to pick up the ball as it rolls towards him that at the moment he grips it he is leaning back in the throwing attitude. The ball is never thrown from higher than the shoulder.

MR. FENDER'S KEENNESS.

When seen by the Evening Standard representative Mr. P. G. H. Fender, who has proved himself useful in the baseball field, was enthusiastic about his innovation.

"The Surrey side are excellent in the field," he said, "but there is always room for improvement, and it is this which has led me to strike a new line."

"All those who have seen a baseball match will agree that the returns at that game are the fastest in the world, and I have for a long time thought that there is a lot to be learnt that might be applicable to cricket. I am very optimistic about the results."

The special line to be taken by the new coach will be that of fast, low pitching.

TENNIS "COMPETITION."

The decrease in the number of applications for April coaching practice at the Oval led to a surmise that cricket is finding lawn tennis too strong a rival among schoolboys. At the moment only 120 applications from schools have been received, compared with 200 last season.

No one who saw the arrival of the Australians. Mr. Fender commented, "could possibly credit such a statement. I expect this will prove the most interesting and popular cricketing season since the war."

"The reason for the decrease at the moment is that we cannot take any more boys. The state of the grass only allows one pitch to be used, but this is used from morning till night, and Mr. Maurice Bird, the coach, is kept at it throughout the week."

WEATHER REPORT.

Last night's weather report, forecast and remarks by the Royal Observatory said:—

The depression over China has deepened slightly. Local forecast: S. winds, moderate, overcast, rain.
